

Resolute Systems Voted Best ADR Provider and its Mediators Place First and Second in The National Law Journal - Chicago Survey

September 2, 2014--Resolute Systems mediators Faustin Pipal and Jennifer Duncan-Brice placed First and Second in the mediator category in the Second Annual Best of Chicago Reader Rankings from The National Law Journal the company announced today. Resolute Systems was named the Top ADR Provider in Chicago as well.

“This is a tremendous honor for Faustin Pipal and Jennifer Duncan-Brice, as well as for Resolute Systems,” said Michael E. Weinzierl, Vice President of Resolute Systems. “For 25 years, Resolute has been providing exceptional mediation services in Chicago and nationally. To receive these recognitions from the Chicago legal community is extremely gratifying.”

Faustin Pipal was voted the Best Individual Mediator in Chicago, and Jennifer Duncan-Brice was voted Top Two Best Individual Mediator in Chicago in the reader survey.

“I am very pleased to have finished first in the readership survey,” Faustin Pipal said. “Each day I focus my mediation practice on helping Chicago lawyers and their clients resolve disputes. This vote of confidence from Chicago lawyers is humbling.”

Jennifer Duncan-Brice, who retired from the Cook County Law Division in 2011 to pursue a mediation career, said she was honored to finish in the Top Two. “There are many superb mediators in Chicago,” she said. “To finish in the Top Two in the NLJ survey is very rewarding.”

According to The National Law Journal, over 1,200 readers cast votes in the 2014 survey. Only the Chicago Legal Community was allowed to vote. The National Law Journal has the largest paid circulation of any weekly publication serving the national legal community. It is owned by ALM, the preeminent 170-year-old legal publishing company
